

1.7 Learning to Learn

Giving advice to new students

Focus: to think about and evaluate learning and learning strategies.

1. This activity is best done at the end of a term. You are going to write a message to a student who will be joining the class next term. Think about the useful information you can give to the student, and take notes under the headings below.

What you need to bring to class:
What I found surprising about the class:
What I enjoy:
What I find difficult:
What works for me:
General advice:

2. Now write the letter, beginning by welcoming the student. Don't forget to use this letter when you really do have a new student!

Dear _____

Welcome to our class!
