Introduction to newspapers and advertising

It is not necessary to carry out all the activities contained in this unit.

Please see Teachers' Notes for explanations, additional activities, and tips and suggestions.

Theme	Introduction to newspapers and advertising.
Level	A1 – B1
Language focus	vocabulary, word identification, grammar, use of student's own language.
Learning focus	Using English textbooks and accessing curriculum content and learning activities.
Activity types	Matching, word identification, structuring sentences and text, cloze, multiple choice, reading comprehension, categorising vocabulary, recording learning, developing a learning resource.
Acknowledgement	Extracts from Less Stress More Success – English Revision for the Junior Certificate. Larry Cotter. Gill & Macmillan.
	We gratefully acknowledge Gill & Macmillan for the right to reproduce text in some of these activities.
Learning Record	A copy of the Learning Record should be distributed to each student.
	Students should:
	Write the subject and topic on the record.
	Tick off/date the different statements as they complete activities.
	Keep the record in their files along with the work produced for this unit.
	4. Use this material to support mainstream subject learning.

Making the best use of these units

- Introduction should ensure that students understand what they are doing and why. Many students will have some difficulty in understanding both the language in the activity and the instructions/purpose for carrying out the activity.
- You can create your personal teaching resource by printing these units in full and filing them by subject in a large ring binder.
- Encourage students to:
 - Bring the relevant subject textbooks to language support class. It does not matter if they have different textbooks as the activities in these units refer to vocabulary and other items that will be found in all subject textbooks. These units are based on curriculum materials.
 - o Take some responsibility for their own learning programmes by:

Developing a personal dictionary for different subjects, topics, and other categories of language, on an on-going basis. This prompt is a reminder.

Recording what they have learnt on the Learning Record, which should be distributed at the start of each unit.

Keeping their own files with good examples of the work produced in language support for different subjects and topics. This file will be an invaluable learning resource in supporting mainstream learning.

Indicates that answers may be found at the end of the unit.

Don't forget that many of the activities in these units are suitable as homework tasks, for self-study, or for use in the subject classroom with the agreement of the subject teacher.

(Read the text below and choose the best answers)

Text:

Many newspapers feature cartoons as a regular element of the service they provide. Cartoons are a form of graphic humour and encapsulate a view of news, or some aspect of life, in an extremely efficient way. A cartoon can convey more in one frame, or through several frames in the case of a cartoon strip, than many pages of text or copy.

In early 2006, a single frame cartoon appearing in a Danish newspaper gave rise to controversy over its portrayal of the prophet Mohammad. Subsequent demonstrations led to many deaths all over the world. Cartoons are probably the only aspect of the media which is truly international in its appeal and effectiveness, as they are more visual than verbal, and are accessible to many nationalities.

The power of a cartoon to lampoon or satirise its target can also lead to a polarisation of responses from different audiences. Overtly political cartoons have been used to criticise governments and politicians of all persuasions. Less controversial are the cartoons which make fun of common human foolishness. Either way they are an art form which are a popular aspect of the print media and when animated are a very successful element of television programming.
